

Community Group Homes

Group Home on very busy intersection

Busy arterials on the south and west side of the group home pictured above. Is this community living in the least restrictive environment?

This group home is situated at a busy arterial intersection which is also connected to an on-ramp to Interstate 5. This is a community home yet would not be appropriate for many who call the RHC campus home. Living in a home such as this one would be a very dangerous living environment for many of our loved ones who call the RHC their home.

This may be an excellent home - I have no idea but I do know that I would not consider this if I were looking for a community home for my son. It's too risky putting his life in danger with access to high traffic areas.
